Volume XVIII

Published by the
JUNIOR CLASS

Southern Illinois State
Normal University
Carbondale, Illinois

It is the purpose of the 1932 Obelisk to present a resumé of the development of educational theory and to show the part played by this college in the educational life of southern Illinois.

Socrates sought truth in the inner consciousness of man—not in the specific information that the individual may have amassed. Mere information he valued as nothing more than mental impedimenta. Truth was to be arrived at by the question method, which has become known as "Socratic" method which would sift out the universal from the transient in the individual's knowledge.

A golden bust of Aristotle, facing right, with curly hair and a draped garment. The name "ARISTOTLE" is inscribed on the base.

In order to create a person of such virtue Aristotle laid out a course of study that amounts to what we would call a liberal education. According to his plan, formal training would continue between the ages of seven and twenty-one. The final end of this training would not be utilitarian; rather it was intended to refine and to enlarge the nature of the individual.

Aristotle was fortunate in that his early years were fostered and shaped by his greatest contemporary, Plato. Aristotle himself thought it was his inheritance from his father, the court physician at Mieza, of which Greek philosophy Aristotle is perhaps the best known and understood. Because of this, his thoroughness in his philosophy seems to have been a natural outgrowth.

Erasmus

Erasmus was perhaps the greatest intellectual figure of the Renaissance. At a time when Europe was struggling from the grasp of a narrow Scholasticism, he stood for the revival of the classics as a means to a broader Humanism. Further, he was the first great champion of universal education, and the first of the educators to insist that the quality and amount of education should depend upon ability and not upon wealth, birth, or sex. The Humanism of Erasmus was broad—so inclusive in fact, that we of the twentieth century, in spite of our increasing disregard of the classics, still accept his point of view in regard to the true relationship of life and learning.

It was by no accident that Erasmus became the greatest of the Humanists. All of his training pointed toward the new learning. He learned Greek and Latin in Paris, and while there met some English students who induced him to come to Oxford. Thomas Linacre, the versatile lecturer at Oxford, revealed the magnitude of Humanism to Erasmus, and inspired him in 1506 to complete his education in the libraries of Venice, Padua, Florence, and Rome.

A yellow-toned illustration of a bust of a man in profile, facing right. He has a large, curly wig and is wearing a high-collared coat with buttons.

Although present-day educators would hardly sanction any such radically "natural" elementary education as that prescribed for the hero of Emile, yet they are at one with Rousseau in their scorn for the archaic pedagogical practice of requiring irksome and valueless memorization of unrelated facts and in their belief in object lessons as a means of knowledge. The theories of Rousseau have been the foundation of all liberalizing reforms in education since his time.

[illegible]

Pestalozzi

Most successful teachers think of themselves as akin to Socrates, but Pestalozzi tried to conceive of himself as one of the children he taught. His principles of instruction have enjoyed world-wide adoption because they are founded on the belief that all the admirable powers of man are due neither to art nor to chance but to nature. In accordance with this belief, his methods of imparting knowledge to a child followed an order of succession exactly parallel with the course of natural development.

Because of Pestalozzi's theory that the teacher should adjust his pace to that of the student, we to-day judge a teacher's worth largely by his ability to look at knowledge from the student's point of view.

At Zurich, Switzerland, in 1746 Johann Heinrich Pestalozzi was born of a pious mother who inspired him with the determination to elevate the debased conditions of the peasantry. He was loved by his contemporaries because he never lost sight of this purpose; he was decorated by the potentates of Europe because he was a constructive reformer; his name has won perpetuation because he was a great teacher.

Dedication

Mr. Shryock's career at S. I. N. U. has been synonymous with the growth of the college. He came here as a teacher in 1894, when the college consisted of only two buildings and a faculty and enrollment proportionately as limited. From that small normal school has grown a teachers' college of class-A standing. No person in the history of S. I. N. U. has contributed so much to the development of the institution as has Mr. Shryock in his thirty-eight years on this campus.

Although Mr. Shryock's service in directing the policies of the college since he became president in 1913 has been invaluable, he will always be best known as a teacher. Two generations have received inspiration from Mr. Shryock's teaching in the literature classes of this college.

To President Shryock the class of 1933 dedicates Volume XVIII of The Obelisk.

MANN

In 1837 Horace Mann was chosen secretary of the newly created State board of education of Massachusetts. In his first year in office he achieved marked improvement in the physical conditions of the Massachusetts public schools. Before Mann had completed his twelve-year tenure he had achieved the creation of the State normal school. All of Mann's activities were, in the end, directed towards making universal education practicable and indispensable.

Acknowledgment

The Obelisk wishes to express its gratitude to the following persons not on the staff for assistance in creating the book:

Mr. Burnett H. Shryock for his interest and generosity in painting the portrait of his father, President Shryock, for use in the 1932 Obelisk:

Miss Lulu D. Roach for her sincere interest and tireless effort in planning and supervising the art work:

Reet Thomas, Dorothy Whitman, Jewell Ferrill, Elizabeth Newman, Grace Claunch, and Andre Ross for their assistance in the preparation of the art work.

EMMA L. BOWYER
Head of Department

Department of English Language and Literature

In the department of English a teaching staff of eleven members offer thirty-six courses of which twenty-eight are open only to juniors and seniors.

VERA LOUISE PEACOCK
Head of Department

Department of Foreign Languages

In the department of foreign languages a teaching staff of six members offer thirty-five courses, of which eight are open only to juniors and seniors. Besides the regular courses, extension courses have been offered this year in Marion, Salem, Mount Vernon, Carmi, and Vienna. These extension courses enable teachers to fill the foreign language requirement for a degree more easily than they could do so in several scattered summers' work.

J. M. PIERCE

HELEN A. BALDWIN

MADELEINE SMITH

J. CARY DAVIS

RICHARD L. BEYER
Head of Department

Department of History

In the department of history a teaching staff of six members offer sixteen courses, of which twelve are open to juniors and seniors. Mr. E. G. Lentz, now on leave of absence, will return to the faculty this summer. Recent developments in this department are the revision of English history courses, a full year of this subject now being offered, and the addition of new advanced courses in European history. The department has been making efforts to build up a real historical section in the library. There is now adequate bibliographical material for a high type of advanced work.

CHARLES PARDEE

CLARENCE H. CRAMER

JOHN I. WRIGHT

WILLIS G. SWARTZ
Head of Department

Department of Political Science

In the department of political science eleven courses are offered, nine of which are open only to juniors and seniors. While political science does not constitute one of the recognized major departments, the dozen or more courses available enable students to obtain either a minor or the equivalent of a major as preparatory to teaching or graduate study.

Department of Commerce

In the department of commerce a teaching staff of three members offer eighteen courses, of which ten are open only to juniors and seniors. Since the administration has permitted a major in commerce, the enrollment has more than doubled. The three full years of senior college courses and the dual nature of commercial work have attracted many of the strongest students of the school.

SUSIE OGDEN

T. L. BRYANT
Head of Department

J. W. NECKERS
Head of Department

Department of Chemistry

In the department of chemistry a teaching staff of four members offer seventeen courses, of which seven are courses open only to juniors and seniors. On the return of Mr. R. A. Scott, who is away on leave of absence, courses in physiological chemistry will be offered, thus opening four fields of study to the chemistry major.

GEORGE M. BROWN

T. W. ABBOTT

K. A. VAN LENTE

S. E. BOOMER
Head of Department

Department of Physics and Astronomy

In the department of physics and astronomy a teaching staff of three members offer eleven courses in physics (eight for juniors and seniors only) and four in astronomy (two for juniors and seniors only). At present a new direct current and alternating current electrical system is being installed, which adds greatly to the excellent equipment of the department.

CHARLOTTE ZIMMERSCHIED

O. B. YOUNG

MARY M. STEAGALL
Head of Department

HILDA A. STEIN

Department of Zoology

In the department of zoology a teaching staff of two members offer fourteen courses, of which seven are open only to juniors and seniors. The addition of a new course, advanced ornithology, has filled out the work for the zoology major. This department furnishes preparatory courses for medicine, dentistry, nursing, and teaching, as well as for correct and intelligent living.

Dr. Caldwell and Miss Denny offer courses in health education (a required subject) and in physiology and bacteriology.

DR. DELIA CALDWELL
School Physician

FLORENCE E. DENNY
School Nurse

WILLIAM MARSHALL BAILEY
Head of Department

MARTHA SCOTT

Department of Botany

In the department of botany a teaching staff of two members offer fourteen courses, of which ten are open only to juniors and seniors. This department is equipped well enough to give graduate work. Botany is a subject of great importance in the high school, and such a well equipped department offers a real opportunity to prospective teachers of high school botany.

Department of Geography

In the department of geography a staff of four members, including Mr. Cox and Miss Shank whose pictures do not appear here, offer fifteen courses in geography and geology, of which eleven are open only to juniors and seniors. In the coming year more emphasis will be placed on field work in geography in recognition of the importance of actual acquaintance with geographical conditions.

ANNEMARIE E. KRAUSE

FRANK H. COLYER
Head of Department

W. T. FELTS
Head of Department

Department of Mathematics

In the department of mathematics a teaching staff of three members offer fourteen courses, of which seven are open only to juniors and seniors. This department has broadened to include all subjects important to the prospective high school teacher as well as to the elementary grade teacher. College geometry, a new course rapidly finding favor in teacher training institutions, has recently been added to the curriculum.

ALICE K. WRIGHT

J. R. PURDY

R. E. MUCKLEROY
Head of Department

Department of Agriculture

In the department of agriculture ten courses are offered, three of which are open only to juniors and seniors. The aims of the agricultural courses are, first, to give as much technical knowledge as possible; second, to combine this knowledge with practical skill in farming; and, third, to demonstrate that such a combination leads to the highest degree of success.

Department of Industrial Arts

The department of industrial arts offers eleven courses in mechanical drawing and in shop practice in both wood and metal. These courses prepare students for teaching these subjects in either the junior high or the four-year high school. The department also offers a course in elementary construction which is most useful for grade school teachers.

LOUIS C. PETERSEN
Head of Department

GLADYS POTTER WILLIAMS
Head of Department

LULU D. ROACH

Department of Art

In the department of art a teaching staff of two members offer fourteen courses of which four are open only to advanced students. It is interesting to note that a major in art is being offered for the first time this year. The expansion of this department has meant the inclusion of many new and important subjects such as stage craft, the elements of composition, and painting from models.

Department of Household Arts

In the department of household arts a teaching staff of two members offer ten courses, of which five are courses open only to juniors and seniors. The need for teachers of home economics in the high school who have had practical experience as well as general education is fulfilled by this department.

MARY LOUISE BARNES

LUCY K. WOODY
Head of Department

DAVID S. MCINTOSH
Head of Department

Department of Music

In the department of music a teaching staff of four members offer ten courses, of which three are open only to juniors and seniors. Under the direction of this department the college maintains an orchestra of sixty members, a band of fifty members, an a-capella choir of thirty members, and a chorus of negro students known as the Roland Hays Club. Further, the department offers entirely without charge class instruction in voice and violin.

JULIA CHASTAINE

HELEN E. MATTHES

WENDELL MARGRAVE

FRANCES D-L ETHERIDGE
Head of Department

Department of Physical Education for Women

In the department of physical education for women a teaching staff of three members offer twenty-one courses. This is the first year in which a minor in physical education has been offered to women students, and twelve students are now taking advantage of this opportunity. Assistant teaching in connection with theory work has also played an important part in attracting women students to this department.

AILEEN CARPENTER

DOROTHY M. MUZZEY

WILLIAM McANDREW
Head of Department

Department of Physical Education for Men

In the department of physical education for men a teaching staff of three members offer ten courses. From the three required courses freshmen get a good foundation on which to build further work in physical education. Although a major in this department is not emphasized, the aim of the department is to give the student a very practical training and postpone the theory of physical education for graduate work.

LELAND P. LINGLE

VINCENT G. DIGIOVANNA

GEORGE D. WHAM
Head of Department

Department of Education

In the department of education a teaching staff of four regular members and a varying number of part-time members offer recurrently fifteen courses, of which nine are open only to juniors and seniors. The usual multiplicity of courses has been avoided in our college with the result that each course is distinctive, definitely helpful, and free from duplications. Every candidate for a degree must offer an educational minor of at least six terms, which amount is believed here and elsewhere to furnish a sound basis for subsequent study and practice.

Wheeler Library

The primary purpose of the college library is to make possible the investigation of any subject connected with the college curriculum. In the early history of college libraries we find no attempts made to get books into the hands of students. At present quite the contrary is true, and Wheeler Library with a staff of four librarians has now become an "active workshop open to all, the very center of the intellectual life in the institution, where students and faculty from every department find opportunity for study, research and recreational reading."

Since the seventeenth century John Milton has personified the ideal of a scholar and a gentleman of attainments. In a concise little paper entitled On Education: to Master Samuel Hartlib Milton has preserved his educational theory. This tractate is wholly biographical and therefore deals only with the student of exceptional powers rather than with the average student, as do the theories of Pestalozzi and Rousseau. In it Milton is classical, and proud of individual resources, and disdainful of the narrow confines of the educational practice of his time. The tractate contains one of his brilliant definitions. He says: "I call a complete and generous education that which fits a man to perform justly, skillfully, and magnanimously all the offices, both private and public, of peace and war".

On December 9, 1608, John Milton was born in the flat over his father's scrivener's shop in Cheapside, London. But the relative meanness of his parents' circumstances did not prevent them from giving their son an education commensurate with his talents. From an early age he received private tutoring, and at the age of sixteen he entered Cambridge, where he became the greatest classical scholar of his age.

Throughout the year the Junior Class has shown enthusiastic interest in school affairs by their numerous rummage and candy sales. Besides they presented in Chapel a very entertaining play, showing in their dramatis personae a group of very capable young actors and actresses.

Bottom Row—Margaret Stroup, Anna Taylor, Opaline Schroeder, Mildred Benz, Saraetta Biggs, Wilma Smith.

Second Row—Frederick Fraser, Harold Crowell, Lola Henderson, Martha Taylor, Nina Shupe, Justine Tomlinson, Georgia Jones, John Herbert Neal.

Third Row—John Herbert Dillinger, Joseph Dillinger, Goodwin Petersen, William Etherton, Alvin Hagier, Truman Travelstead, George Arnold.

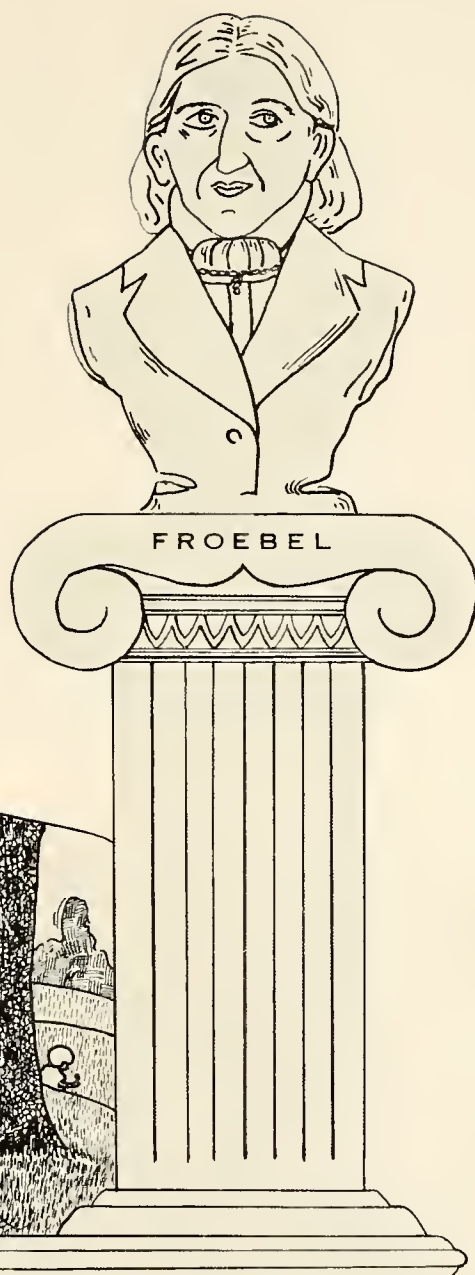

Sophomore Class

Although the Sophomore Class did no particular thing of importance as a class, they were constantly aiding the Juniors and Seniors in anything that they might undertake.

Activities

Froebel's imagery and idealism gave him an individual conception of the doctrine of Pestalozzi—a conception that took form in his original development of the kindergarten. His principles of unity which establish a mutual interaction between all forms of knowledge make the most workaday facts intensely interesting to a young imagination. Froebel not only gave the kindergarten its name but also invented the games, songs, and disguised motor activities which even now are used to make the child learn without being conscious of the process.

Today we know that Froebel's principles are applicable not only to children but to students of all ages and rank. Out of this knowledge has been created our inclusive system of college activities.

A craving for learning and a natural vein of mysticism led Friedrich Froebel into a lifetime search for a hidden unity. From his birth in 1782, through his early days in the Thuringen forests, until his death in 1852, his life was ruled by an insistent thirst for knowledge. He became something more than a pupil of Pestalozzi because he formulated additional theories entirely original.

The May Fete

The Women's Physical Education Department presented the annual May festival last year on Thursday, May 28. The program, which was composed of group dances, represented careful planning and diligent practice on the part of the department.

The setting was an English country scene, skillfully created on the section of the campus behind the gymnasium. A rustic throne and wall furnished a background for the gaily clad dancers. The Queen and her procession passed through a leafy gate and circled before the spectators to the throne.

The May Queen was elected from nominees selected by the different classes. Last year the queen, Maxine Winchester, was chosen from the freshman class. Miss Winchester was also Football Queen this year and made a very lovely queen on both occasions.

Miss Mary Bruce, 1931 President of Anthony Hall, was the dignified Lord Mayor. Lillian Hudspeth was charming as the crown bearer.

Among the dances presented, the most interesting was the sword dance, very skillfully executed by a group of freshman girls. The ribbon dance was the most colorful. The festival was concluded by the joyous "May Day Gallop" by the entire ensemble.

The Prioress.....	Margaret Hill	The Doctor.....Harold Bailey
Other Nuns—Julia Raiguel, Jane Richardson, Frances Matthews, Emily Switzer, Jane Federer, Beulah Borger, and Moneta Dillow.

During commencement week, 1931, the Zetetic Literary Society presented at the Shryock Auditorium The Cradle Song by Martinez Sierra.

The setting of The Cradle Song is a convent of the Dominican nuns in Spain. The attention of the audience is centered upon Sister Joanna, who devotes her life to the rearing of the baby Teresa, a foundling left on the convent doorstep. In the second act Teresa is grown, and preparations are under way for her marriage to a fine young man, Antonio. The sisters are all reluctant to give her up, but it is Sister Joanna of the Cross that suffers real anguish when Teresa leaves the convent to go out into the world.

Miss Marjorie Leach, as Sister Joanna, gave her usual finished performance; and Harold Bailey, by his portrayal of the old doctor will maintain his reputation as a clever and capable actor.

The Donovan Affair, presented commencement week by the Socratic Literary Society at Shryock Auditorium, was one of the most successful dramatic productions of the year. It was the first mystery play ever presented by the society.

The plot concerned the mysterious death of Jack Donovan and two other guests at a banquet. A cat's-eye ring owned by Jack furnished a probable motive for the crime. In the course of events practically every character was suspected. In the last two or three lines of the play the fanatic butler, Nelson, was revealed as the murderer. Aubrey Land, as the butler, gave the most distinguished performance of the evening. However, he was given strong support by a well chosen and well directed cast.

Academic Procession, Faculty Section

Commencement Week, 1931

Commencement week for the class of 1931 was observed the last week in May. President Shryock conferred an especial honor upon the graduates by delivering the commencement address.

After Mr. Shryock's address ninety-four graduates received their Ed. B. diplomas, and one hundred and forty-one were graduated from the two-year course. This total of two hundred and thirty-five graduates represented a large increase over that of any preceding graduating class.

The academic procession was led by President Shryock, followed by the faculty arranged in departments, each member in academic dress indicative of his degree. Candidates for a degree followed and then the two-year graduates, the classes being distinguished by the colors of their caps and gowns.

The band concert, directed by Mr. Margrave, was presented on the campus on Monday night, in honor of which occasion the Delta Sigma Epsilon Sorority decorated the lawn with lanterns. The Delta Sigma girls also conducted a sale of lanterns and other novelties.

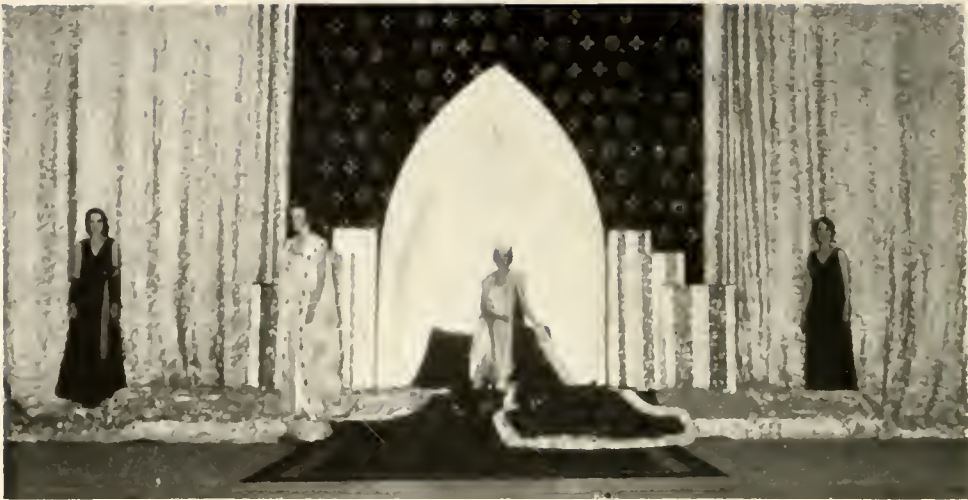

Academic Procession, Student Section

The concert program consisted of the following numbers:

March, Barnum and Bailey's Favorite.....	King
Overture, Barber of Seville.....	Rossini
March, Bombasto.....	Farrar
Woodland Sketches.....	MacDowell
To a Wild Rose
From an Indian Lodge
Elfintanz	Lehor
Phaeton, Symphonic Poem.....	Saint Soeur
March, Colonel Bozey.....	Alford

It is expected that a total of about two hundred and eighty students will receive their diplomas in June of this year. Of this number one hundred and fifty will receive degrees—the first year in the history of the college in which the number of four-year graduates has exceeded that of the two-year course.

The 1931 Homecoming

Homecoming in 1931 was celebrated with more than the usual excitement. The townspeople collaborated with the Homecoming Committee in attracting a record-breaking number of alumni to the reunion festivities on Friday and Saturday, October 19 and 20.

Strut and Fret's annual revue on the evening before the day of the game was called The Depressions of 1931, and was composed of several short musical and burlesque numbers. Before the performance began, Mr. Shryock gave a speech of welcome to the returning students. Because of their original success the year before Mr. Di Giovanna's gym team provided one of the acts with a skillful tumbling exhibition. The finale of the revue came when Miss Maxine Winchester was crowned 1931 Football Queen on a throne before a scintillating cyclorama of silver.

The art, music, and home economics departments assisted in making The Depressions of 1931 one of the most entertaining performances ever staged by Strut and Fret. Miss Julia Jonah directed the performance, with musical direction by Mr. David McIntosh.

The 1931 Homecoming parade was the largest ever assembled here, because of the participation of almost all of the campus organizations. Rooming-houses and sororities along the line of march were elaborately decorated for the occasion. The Homecoming committee awarded prizes for the cleverest floats and individual stunts in the parade and for the best decorated dwellings. Most effective among the buildings was Anthony Hall, lighted by Japanese lanterns hung outside the windows.

An audience of unprecedented size, composed largely of alumni, gave the revue performers an enthusiastic and hilarious ovation. During the intermission the annual Bollyhoo was circulated in the auditorium.

The Homecoming Game

Although there had been almost incessant rains during the week before the homecoming game with DeKalb, the prospects of a soggy field did not prevent a large crowd from turning out to see what proved to be one of the best gridiron contests of the entire season.

Fast backfield work was restricted because of the slow field, and for a time a scoreless tie looked probable. But in the last minutes of the second quarter Swofford caught a long pass and was brought down within five yards of De Kalb's goal. McGowan carried the ball through right tackle for a touchdown. The Maroons kicked successfully for the extra point. DeKalb scored six points in the third quarter, but they were held, giving Carbondale victory by a one-point margin.

Abe Martin came back to the lineup in this game to play his last game for S. I. N. U.

Christmas Choral Program

On the evening of December 16, 1931, the music department, with Mr. McIntosh conducting, presented the annual program of Christmas choral and orchestral music.

Under the supervision of Miss Lulu Roach, the art department created a magnificent Gothic cathedral interior as a setting for the program.

The Washington Bicentennial

In cooperation with the National Bicentennial Committee, Strut and Fret presented three one-act plays on February 25 in observance of Washington's two-hundredth anniversary.

Brandywine, the first of the sketches, portrayed Washington in one of the anxious periods of the Revolution. Marc Green played Washington, with a supporting cast including Victor Goings, Will Adams, Norris Runalls, and William Rushing.

In the second skit, Mount Vernon, Washington appeared in an episode of his home life after he had retired from national life. Marc Green again took the part of Washington, and was supported by Margaret Hill and Harold Bailey.

In the concluding play, called Happiness Day, Jewell Ferrill portrayed Martha Washington as she was several years after Washington's death. Margaret Hill and Louise Southall filled the minor roles in this act.

Miss Lucy K. Woody and Miss Lulu Roach assisted Miss Julia Jonah and the Strut and Fret players by creating costumes and settings.

Martha

The music department achieved a most pronounced success in its production on April 21, 1932, of Von Flotow's opera, Martha.

The cast for Martha was composed of the men's and women's choruses and the following persons in the principal parts:

Martha.....	Mrs. David McIntosh
Naney, her friend.....	Miss Thelma Kellogg
Lionel.....	Robert Dunn Faner
Plunkett.....	Wendell Margrave
Tristan.....	Harold Bailey
The Sheriff.....	Marc Green
Servant Girls: Louise Southall, Ruth Stevenson, Jane Rose Whitley
Hiring Farmers: Bert Ebbs, Allan Graves

An audience of satisfactory size composed of students and townspeople gave the performers a more enthusiastic ovation than has ever been awarded to any similar production in the Shryock auditorium. Mrs. McIntosh and Mr. Faner gave distinguished performances of the two leading roles, and the production was noteworthy in the uniformly high level of the performance of minor roles and choruses.

The art department, by devoting several weeks of earnest work to the project, constructed an entirely new set of elaborate scenery for the production. The audience was especially delighted by the splendor of the costumes, some of which were secured from theatrical costumers, and some of which were created by Miss Woody and the home economics department.

Mr. David McIntosh directed the entire musical work for Martha, and Miss Julia Jonah directed the dramatization.

Preliminary Announcement of 1932 Spring Plays

George Kauffman and Marc Connelly's To The Ladies and Sutton Vane's Outward Bound were chosen for the Socratic and Zetetic spring plays for 1932.

To The Ladies is a pleasant domestic comedy that has been eminently successful on Broadway. Mr. Connelly's instinct for exciting situations and Mr. Kauffman's flair for amusing dialogue are combined in this play of tribute to the perspicacity of the "ladies."

The Zetetic society, in choosing Outward Bound, has assumed a task that will be deserving of their most determined dramatic efforts. In this play Sutton Vane has handled the perplexing question of immortality in a novel and sometimes tragic—sometimes amusing—manner. But even in its humorous moments the play is intense and dramatic. Outward Bound has repeated its New York stage success of several years ago in a recent film version.

According to custom, the plays will be presented on successive nights during commencement week.

Athletics

Modern sophistication and the predominance of urban life have not made the ideal of physical perfection any less alluring than it was to the ancient Greeks. The throbbing exultation that Hercules felt from the consciousness of his own strength is still felt in thousands of gymnasiums. No multiple horse-powered machine will ever inspire that idolatrous worship of energy that draws millions of Americans to stadiums and gymnasium bleachers. In no nation's history, not even that of the classical Greeks, has an entire people engaged in the promotion of activities designed to perfect and glorify the human body.

Present-day education does not improve the mind at the expense of the body; the twentieth century has learned that sports are not necessarily alien to scholarly attainment.

Hercules was born in the minds of men about the time man first learned to symbolize his ideals. Ever since then Hercules has been overwhelming the forces of wrath and evil by the unselfish and courageous use of his muscles and his heart.

Hercules is not dead. He will survive when the last fragments of the Parthenon or modern athletic stadiums have subsided into the dust.

Captain William McAndrew

For nineteen years Captain McAndrew has directed athletics at the Southern Illinois State Normal University, serving also as coach of football and basketball. During this time the school has risen from a small normal school to a class-A teachers' college, and along with this advancement has come a parallel development in the athletic life of the school. Captain McAndrew's primary aim has been the building of a department which would meet the practical needs of students planning to teach and coach athletics. And for a coach who has always considered winning secondary to developing men, he has produced a surprising number of successful teams in both football and basketball.

JOHN CHAPMAN

John Chapman has done efficiently the work required of a business manager of athletics for two consecutive years. This work involves making all arrangements for food, lodging, and transportation for the team on its trips and making all preparation for games at home or out of town.

JAMES FEIRICH

James Feirich, the assistant business manager of athletics, has lightened the load of Manager Chapman during the year of 1931-32 and at the same time has prepared himself to take over the position of business manager in 1932-33. Feirich has shown ability in his work and should be very successful at this post next year.

CO-CAPTAIN CANADA

Canada has spent three years on the Southern football team and has improved his game each year. Because of the absence of Co-Captain Patton during most of the 1931 season, the entire responsibility of directing the team fell upon him. His success may be measured by the fact that he was selected as center on the Little Nineteen All-Conference Team—an honor which came as a reward for four years of endeavor and hard playing.

CO-CAPTAIN PATTON

In playing his third year for the Southern squad Patton has shown extraordinary ability as a football player. Although injured in the first game and forced out of active service for most of the football season, he went with the team on all of its trips and contributed greatly to the spirit of the squad. Patton was re-elected co-captain for the 1932 season.

Football 1931

The opening of the football season of 1931 had prospects of another All-Conference team to succeed the team of 1930. Most of the letter men of the team that won the championship of the Little Nineteen Conference in 1930 were back, with the addition of Willis and Johnson, letter men of 1929. But accidents and injuries deprived the team of most of its distinguished players. In the first game Co-Captain Patton suffered a leg injury which prevented him from playing again until the last two games of the season. Later Martin and Sisney, two star players, were disabled for most of the remainder of the season. But for each loss a new man stepped in, and the team went through the season's schedule with only two defeats. At the end of the season Captain Canada was elected center of the Little Nineteen All-Conference Team. This honor came as a merited reward to Canada for his generalship and excellent playing. Our men received further recognition when Lynn Holder, a speedy freshman, was given honorable mention for the All-Conference Team. At the end of the season the players elected Albert Patton and Paul Sisney captains for 1932.

A chronological account of the season should furnish a clear idea of the work done by the Southern squad. The first game of the season resulted in an easy victory over the Scott Field Aviators. Co-Captain Patton received an injury in this game which kept him out of active service until the last two games of the season. Next the Maroons met the Mount Morris squad, an undefeated team of the previous year, in a hard-fought contest, from which the Southern squad emerged victorious. A non-conference game with our traditional rival, Cape Girardeau, added another victory to our list, as did likewise the following game with the Charleston eleven. The fifth game of the season, played at McKendree, brought the total of consecutive Maroon victories to fifteen for the two years, 1930 and 1931.

Then came the two defeats of the season. The first was inflicted by the Old Normal eleven and the second by the Shurtleff team. These two losses were the result of the crippled condition of the Maroon squad after the loss of its mainstays, Patton, Martin, and Sisney.

McAndrew's men, however, staged a come-back in the return game with Cape Girardeau. It was a slow game on a wet field, ending in a hard-fought victory for Southern. The last game of the season witnessed a brief return of Martin to active service and resulted in the defeat of DeKalb, a contender for the championship of the Little Nineteen Conference.

The prospects for football in 1932 are as yet uncertain, but if the players are characterized by the same fight and spirit that the 1931 players have shown, S. I. N. U. may look forward to another successful football season.

Basketball 1931-32

Because of the large turnout of basketball players at the opening of the basketball season, Coach McAndrew was able to develop a two-team combination that made a fair record for the season.

Coach McAndrew's object was to develop a strong team for the season of 1932-33. The appearance of four freshmen, all of whom were outstanding high school players, has made this object attainable. A team composed of these four and Herbert Bricker, a junior, developed so rapidly that it was given a large share of the action in last season's contests. Not only did the five young players work together harmoniously, but they showed an individual skill that surpassed any previous freshman performance. Lenich was one of the smoothest players of the four, his skill in passing making possible the large number of baskets recorded for Holder. Davidson's poise in trying situations and his excellent work in the guard position gave him the right to act as captain in the absence of a regularly elected one. Reeves, the other guard, was equally skilled, his ability to evade his guards resulting in frequent baskets. The fastest man on the team was Lynn Holder, the freshman who received conference honors in football. Through the cooperation of the other players he became the high-point man for the season. The only man of college experience on the team was Herbert Bricker, the center, who maintained his smooth and steady game throughout the season. The members of the veteran team who upheld the high standards of the 1931 season were Swofford, Wright, and Lauder.

Swofford

Bricker

Davidson

Although the records show eight victories as against thirteen losses, the team achieved a fair amount of success. The winning of six of the first seven games gave hope of a championship team. But subsequent losses to teams which we had already defeated took away this hope. Then followed a series of four consecutive losses (all of them losses by only one point) to Cape Girardeau, Old Normal, Charleston, and Shurtleff. The two teams split up toward the last of the season when several of the two squads suffered injuries. The lack of adjustment following these changes resulted in defeats of the Maroon squad. The regular squad failed to take any place in the Illinois State Teachers Basketball Tournament.

However, the outlook for the season of 1933 is more promising than it has been for several years. All five members of the regular squad will return to college. The year's practice in playing together in addition to the experience gained from a season of college opposition should enable the team to do distinguished playing in the season of 1933.

TRACK

Leland P. Lingle

Coach Lingle's success and ability as a track coach is now well established. He is a graduate of Southern Illinois Normal University and has taken a Master's degree at Iowa State University. Through his efforts and skill the Southern track teams have won the championship of the State teachers' college tournaments three times out of four. The track team of the season of '31 maintained the championship calibre of Southern's athletes by winning every meet it entered—a feat largely due to the ability of Coach Lingle to secure the utmost from each man.

Leland P. Lingle

Captain Carl Wright

Carl Wright, captain of the track team during the season of '31, lead the team to its third championship of the State teachers' colleges of Illinois. He performed in all of the dashes and was a consistent point winner in them, equaling the all-time college record of 9.9 seconds in the hundred-yard dash, set previously by McLaughlin of S. I. N. U. He has also shown his speed and athletic ability in basketball. Our success in all of the track meets was due in large measure to Captain Wright's ability and to his leadership and interest.

Track 1931

The track season of 1931 was the most successful one that Southern has known. Although the turnout of track aspirants at the opening of the season did not give hopes of an unusually successful year, the season ended with Southern holding the championship of the teachers' colleges of Illinois.

The Maroon squad opened the season by easily defeating the track team of the Cape Girardeau teachers' college. The outcome of the second meet, which was with Shurtleff College, was a duplication of the season's first contest.

Stanley

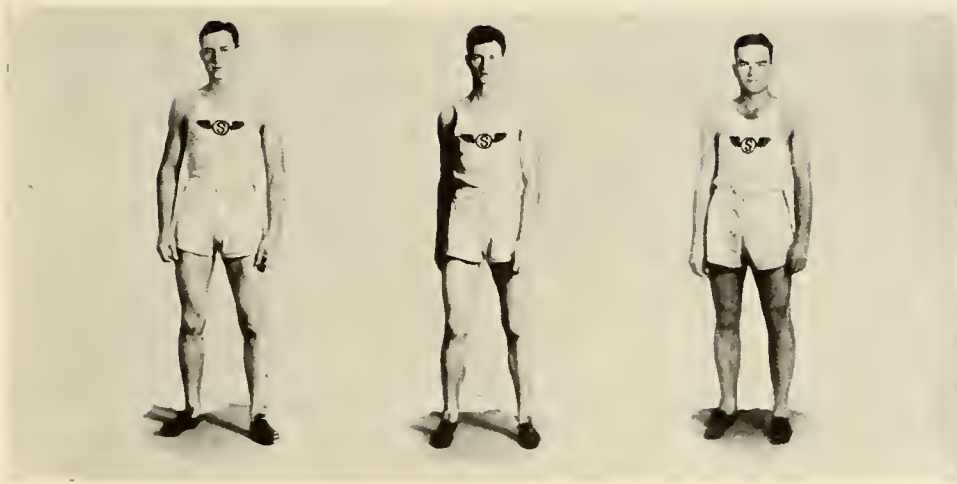

Lipe

Launder

The next two meets were both quadrangular affairs—the first taking place at Lebanon and the second at Charleston. In both of these meets S. I. N. U.'s team was at top form.

The State meet, in which all of the Little Nineteen colleges entered, was won by Bradley, largely because of the efforts of one of the best track men in the State. He alone accounted for twenty-two points toward winning this meet. Ray and Reed gave the Southern squad a few points, however, Ray winning second place in the broad-jump and Reed fifth in the 880-yard run.

Watson

Wedding

Deason

The last meet of the season was won easily from McKendree College, and the season of 1931 was completed with a perfect string of victories to the credit of Southern Illinois Teachers College.

Our track team of 1931 was fortunate in having many distinguished men and at the same time an evenly balanced group. It was due to this combination that Coach Lingle's squad won every meet in which it entered with the exception of the State meet of Little Nineteen colleges.

Martin

Davis

The performance of Southern's men in this meet showed that they had developed considerably since the opening of the season. The winning of the State Teachers College Meet added another victory to the list. The Maroons secured eighty-one points in this meet.

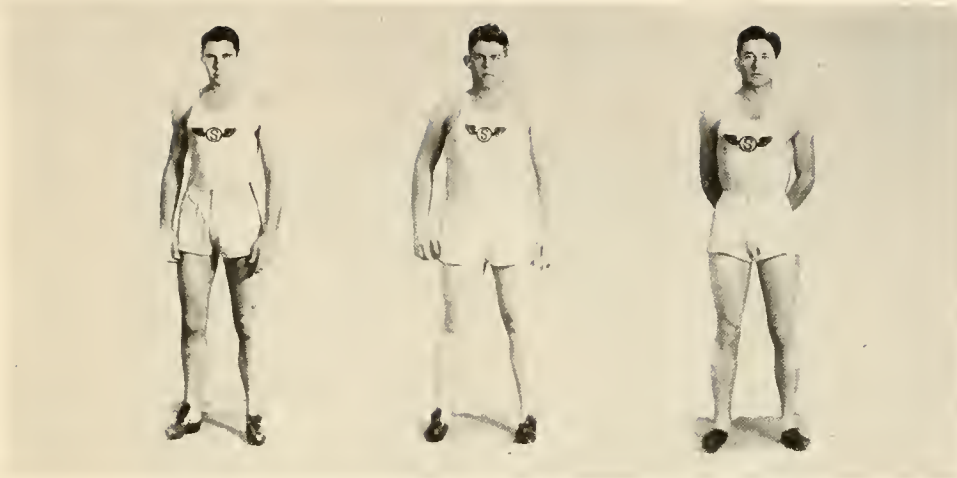

The most important achievement of the season was the attainment of the championship of the State Teachers College Meet—this being the third consecutive time that the Maroon team has carried away this honor. Besides their collective victories, the individual members of the team made records which have added to the honors of the team. Important among these records is that of Captain Wright, who equalled the mark of 9.9 seconds in the one hundred yard dash set previously by McLaughlin of Southern. The freshmen performed in more events and did better work than at any time previous to the 1931 season.

Schrade

Wiggins

Davidson

Bricker

Brown

Reed

Among the records was that of Brown, who threw the javelin a distance of 185 feet, this being the best throw in the State for the year '31. Then Reed, a veteran half-miler, succeeded in lowering his time to 2.04 minutes in this event. These marks along with the good performances of Johnson and Stanley in the pole-vault were significant in the 1931 victories.

Alma Ray is the captain of the 1932 track team. He is one of our most consistent track men. Until 1931 he had entered over thirty track meets and had failed to win first in only five of them. With a captain of Ray's ability and spirit and a team made up largely of last year's victors, the 1932 squad has a good chance of equaling the 1931 record.

Vincent Di Giovanna

Vincent Di Giovanna has been a faculty member of the Southern Teachers' College for only three years, during which time he has made himself invaluable to the department of physical education. Not only has he worked unsparingly to bring his branch of the department to the status which it now enjoys, but he has made himself the valued friend of all students with whom he has come into contact.

Tumbling and Parallel Bars

In three years Instructor Di Giovanna has developed an excellent tumbling and parallel-bar team. Each year has shown improvement in the technique of the gymnasts, and they now have a large repertoire of stunts.

Boxing and Wrestling

Boxing and wrestling have been given increased attention in the physical education department during the last three years. Regular courses which are now offered in these activities have become increasingly popular, and intensive activity in these sports has introduced a new element of skill and perfection in the Annual Boxing and Wrestling Tournament which was previously lacking.

During the last three years Coach Di Giovanna, director of physical education, has been instructor of the boxing classes and Coach Lingle of the wrestling classes, and each year the turnout of boxers and wrestlers has increased both in numbers and in ability.

Four years ago the first boxing and wrestling tournament was staged at Southern. The tournament was characterized by a predominance of brawn and slugging ability. College students with very little previous boxing training entered the event. With the advent of regular courses administered by members of the faculty the mauling tactics of the contestants disappeared, giving place to skill in offensive and defensive fighting. This improvement in boxing technique has been accompanied by a growing number of spectators who have witnessed the tournaments.

The 1932 tournament was the most successful one that has been held at S. I. N. U. More than four hundred people witnessed the affair. Because of the very even matches that were scheduled interest in the tournament ran high. Further, an exhibition by the tumbling and parallel-bar team during an intermission furnished an interesting feature of the evening's entertainment.

The 1932 wrestling finals began with the one hundred and twenty-five pound weight and extended through to the heavy weight. The 125-pound class was won by Frank Peternel, who defeated Roscoe Cook. Luther Upton took the title for the 135-pound class when he defeated Dawson, the former holder of the title. One of the upsets of the tournament was the defeat of Uhls by Mike Belbas in the 145-pound class. In the 155-pound class Deason, acting as substitute for James Stormont, scored a fall in the shortest bout of the evening. Lyman Aken, a massive freshman, used his weight to advantage when he defeated Noble Thomas in the heavyweight division of the wrestling.

The boxing bouts were unusually exciting. Bugel and Leach, bantam weights, began the show with a fast fight that ended in a decision for Bugel.

Laney and Eadic fought a careful and determined fight that went two extra rounds before the judges were able to make a decision giving Laney the winning margin.

In the Tauber-Graskewicz battle the customers saw what was perhaps the hardest punching ever exhibited in a local ring. Both fighters connected frequently with devastating body blows, but each managed to stay on his feet until the last gong. The decision went to Tauber.

But it remained for the heavyweight fight to be the sensation of the evening. Miller and Bauder, the finale fighters, almost knocked each other out in the beginning of the third round. The fight was called a draw when both men finished swinging lustily but in a groggy condition.

The following men received championship medals in the 1932 tournament:

The Tumbling Team

The adaptability of tumbling to exhibition work has brought this division of physical education to a distinguished position in the athletic activities of the school.

The initial performance of the tumbling squad each year is at the Homecoming entertainment, and the act is always a favorite.

In the course of the school year several other exhibitions are given, chiefly at basketball games. During the season of 1932 the team has established the custom of giving performances in high schools of neighboring towns. This custom represents an effort on the part of the physical education department of S. I. X. C. to stimulate an interest in gymnastics in the high schools of southern Illinois. Although only one trip was made, calls from other high schools came which could not be filled.

The last two appearances of the tumbling squad were made at the annual meeting of the Southern Illinois Teachers Association and at the Boxing and Wrestling Tournament. Both of these performances were very successful and served to increase still further the possibilities for exhibition work on the part of the tumbling squad.

Varsity Basketball Lettermen

Intramural Athletics

One of the criticisms of the Southern Illinois Teachers College in former years has been the lack of intramural athletics. In attempting to meet this criticism and to bring the college to the highest rating possible, a program of intramural sports has been launched which is proving to be very popular and successful.

Through the efforts of the athletic department this program has been developed intensively for two years, until now all the sports—basketball, baseball, handball, tennis, and track have a place in it.

Chief among the intramural sports is basketball. The work in connection with this during the season of 1932 showed great improvement over that of '31 in that more teams entered, competition was keener, and greater student interest was manifested.

The teams entered are divided into two groups, the "American League" and the "National League." The tournament is run off in round robin style. That is, each team of one league plays all the other teams in the same league. The winners of the two divisions meet in the last game of the tournament to determine the champion team of the college.

The champion team of 1932 was the "808 South Normal" group, which was headed by Walter Willis, a former player on the varsity basketball team.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

Frances D-L Etheridge

Miss Frances Etheridge came to this college in 1925 directly after graduation from the University of Illinois.

During the seven years she has been head of the department of physical education for women, the curriculum has developed from a group of purely optional courses to the present well organized group of courses which occupy a significant position in the college curriculum.

In 1927 Miss Etheridge instituted the custom of an annual May fete, and under her direction the Women's Athletic Association has evolved from a local organization of women's athletics to a chapter of a national league.

Miss Etheridge has been sincerely interested in her department and has won the admiration of her associates.

Physical Education Minors

In compliance with a demand for well trained teachers of physical education the department of women's physical education has offered this year for the first time a minor in that subject. Hence several credit courses have been inaugurated in addition to the work required for graduation.

The class-room work consists of a study of methods under the supervision of Mrs. Dorothy M. Muzzey. In connection with this study of theory, practice teaching is offered in the freshman gymnasium classes and sports. This practice work is organized according to the seasons. During the fall term work is given in hockey, soccer, and volleyball, and some practice in the application of the general principles of physical education; during the winter term basketball, rhythm, and gymnastics; during the spring term baseball, track, and stunts. These courses offer a varied program to the student who wishes to secure a minor in physical education.

Organizations

Herbert Spencer in his essay on "What Knowledge is of Most Worth" gave to his age a convincing plea for the inclusion of natural sciences in educational curricula, and to ours an established belief that knowledge of natural phenomena is as necessary to culture as a study of the classics. To Spencer we owe the present material content of education which is designed to elevate conduct and make life pleasanter, nobler, and more effective. At a time when educators were as averse to reform as were the Spanish inquisitors Spencer advanced in clear, logical arguments his expositions on the need for versatility. Spencer bequeathed to us an educational system that includes activities that are congenial to contemporary life.

Herbert Spencer was a descendant of educators. He was born in 1820 into an atmosphere of intellectual traditions. Ill health prevented his attending the university, but his reading at home gave him a remarkable ability in working out original problems. He was a student of Pestalozzi only incidentally. His conceptions, while affected by contemporary teachers, were born of his own experiments.

The School Council

George D. Wham.....Chairman

Elma Trieb.....Secretary

The School Council is composed of eight faculty members who are class advisers or heads of departments and eight students, a man and a woman from each class. It serves as a meeting ground of student and faculty opinion. Among its regular duties in connection with student activities is the selection of the editor, business manager, and faculty advisers of The Egyptian and The Obelisk and the confirmation of the choice of staff members of these publications.

This year the Council has been particularly active and has to its credit several important achievements. One of these is the introduction of the secret ballot as a means of giving the members more freedom in expressing their opinions, and providing for more complete representation of faculty and student opinion.

Aside from the secret ballot, the most important work of the School Council has been the creation of a new cut system. This system has several provisions: all juniors and seniors are permitted to have unlimited unexcused absences, providing their scholastic average is four-point or better, the average carrying over from the preceding term; every student is permitted to have four unexcused absences regardless of scholastic rating; no unexcused absences are permitted to any student on the day of an examination announced one week in advance or on the day preceding or following a regular school holiday; any complaints from faculty or students are to be referred to the Council.

Further, the School Council passed a regulation permitting students to leave a two-hour examination at the end of an hour and a half, if they have finished.

As The Obelisk goes to press, the School Council is conducting an investigation of the possibility of changing the name of the school and has submitted a proposal to the student body that a change be made in the letters awarded for scholarship and participation in the major sports. These changes have been suggested on account of the growth of the school from a normal school to a teachers' college.

Anthony Hall

Anthony Hall, the women's dormitory, was first occupied in 1913, the inaugural reception of President Shryock serving as the dedication of the Hall. At present seventy-two women students live at Anthony Hall, with Miss Mary Crawford as Faculty Head.

The dormitory rooms are either single or double and are well equipped as study and sleeping rooms. On each floor there is an ironing room and a sewing machine for the use of the residents. On the first floor are a reception room, living room, reading room, and dining room, which are available for use at all times. In addition there is a suite of office, sitting room, and bedroom for the Faculty Head; and for the residents an infirmary comprised of rooms for the patient and a nurse, a bath, and a diet kitchen, all of which may be completely isolated from the rest of the building. Complete laundry equipment is installed in the basement. Towels and bedding as well as laundry service for all such articles are included in the remarkably low living-charge of seven dollars a week. In view of these facts, it is surprising to note that Anthony Hall is self-supporting.

The furniture and equipment were planned to the smallest detail, from Oriental rugs to kitchen utensils, by interior decorators from the University of Chicago. A tour of the building easily convinces one of the success of their achievement.

Every effort is made to create a homelike atmosphere at Anthony Hall. Residents are permitted to entertain at dinner, tea, cards, etc., either individually or in groups, and there are frequent parties in which all the residents participate. Christmas is observed every year during the week preceding Christmas vacation by decorating the living rooms and trimming a Christmas tree. At the 1931 Homecoming, Japanese lanterns hung outside of every window created a really beautiful effect. Anthony Hall plays a conspicuous part in all activities and events of the school year.

Mu Tau Pi is an honorary journalistic fraternity. It was organized in October, 1931, for the purpose of doing all in its power to help campus publications. The membership is elective and is composed of undergraduates who have completed a year of noteworthy journalistic work on this campus.

The fraternity meets regularly every week, afternoon and evening meetings alternating. Most of the afternoon meetings are held at the homes of the various members.

Miss Selma Nelson, one of the charter members, designed the key and crest for the organization.

Mu Tau Pi has aided journalism on the campus by compiling a style sheet for The Egyptian and by starting a journalistic library for the Egyptian office. The fraternity also sponsored a journalistic contest during the winter term for the purpose of encouraging journalism on the campus and discovering journalistic ability. The fraternity plans to conduct other contests of like character in the future.

A number of people who have done creditable work on the Egyptian and Obelisk staffs this year have qualified for membership, and the following people have been pledged: Alice Draper, Earl Hanson, Leora Hartley, Ray Heitman, and Jane Warren.

Education Club

Richard Watson	President
Virgil Henry.....	Vice President
Clarence Kirchhoefer.....	Secretary
Clarence Arnold.....	Treasurer
Bruce W. Merwin.....	Faculty Adviser

The Education Club was organized on October 27, 1931, by some dozen students and members of the faculty who are especially interested in the subject of education. The purpose, adopted from the constitution of the Kappa Phi Kappa Professional Education Fraternity, is "to promote the cause of education by encouraging men of sound moral character and recognized ability to engage in the study of its principles and problems. For the furtherance of the above purpose, the club shall emphasize among its members social intercourse, scholarly attainment, and professional ideals."

Members of the club include students who have completed or are enrolled in courses in education amounting to six semester hours and who have given promise of genuine interest in the professional study of education, together with faculty members interested in education and active and inactive alumni.

The club has engaged in several discussions of a useful nature, such as a study of the teaching opportunities in high schools of southern Illinois; methods of locating teaching vacancies and proper forms of application; a master's thesis by Mr. Warren; various articles in current educational periodicals. The club was invited to attend a meeting of county superintendents announced by Superintendent Blair, on January 6, 1932. Since the membership includes alumni, the Education Club should have in the future far-reaching contacts with the teaching field.

As the Obelisk goes to press, the announcement comes that the Education Club has been granted a charter by the national educational fraternity, Kappa Phi Kappa.

The Forum, the men's debate club, meets every Monday night. The membership is limited to twenty-five. Programs are devoted to public speaking, debating, and a general pursuit of forensic art. An innovation of the club this year is the extemporaneous speaking contest, comprising a novice contest for new men and a championship contest open to the entire club. The 1932 Spring Debate teams were composed of the following men: Affirmative—Guy Williams and Paul Benthall; Negative—Venice Brink and Harry Moss. The Forum won this debate, and by this, its third consecutive victory, the club is entitled to retain possession of the championship cup. John Brewer and Ralph Eadie represented the Forum in a debate with Evansville College.

The French Club was organized in the spring term of 1931. Since the programs are conducted in French, the club is composed almost entirely of French students, although membership is open to anyone in college. This year the individual programs have all been planned around some definite part of France or phase of French life, art, or history. Each member appears on the program several times during the year and thereby receives valuable training in interpreting and speaking French.

The Science Club was organized in 1929 for the purpose of promoting the unified interests of the various science departments of the college. The club encourages experimental investigation and more extensive scientific reading. It fosters scientific interests in southern Illinois and enables the students to become acquainted with all phases of scientific progress. The membership includes all members of the science faculties; outsiders and students may join by invitation.

Orchestra

David S. McIntosh.....Director

Julia Chastaine.....Concert Mistress

The orchestra was organized in 1914 at the instigation of President Shryock, who wished at the time to make S. I. N. U. distinctive from other normal schools in the State by featuring an orchestra.

The instrumentation of the orchestra is of symphonic proportions, and the selections which it plays are only those which are worthy of serious effort. The orchestra library contains over four hundred such selections.

The orchestra takes an important part in school functions, especially in its provision of music for daily chapel exercises. This year it presented concerts on Washington's birthday and at the annual meeting of the Southern Illinois Teachers Association and accompanied the opera, Martha, presented by the music department.

The band, an organization of fifty-two members, was established in 1915 by Mr. Glen C. Bainum. It plays for chapel exercises on Friday and provides the music at all athletic games, and other functions such as the Hallowe'en and Homecoming parades. It is also customary for the band to give an open-air concert during commencement week. This year at Homecoming the band conducted a high school band contest for the Business Men's Association of Carbondale.

The Y. W. C. A. sponsors the League of Women Voters, the Poetry Club, and a book exchange and plays an important part in the social life of the college, giving each year a freshman party, a series of teas for women students, and several joint parties with the Y. M. C. A.

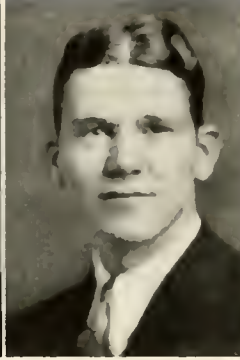

The local Y. W. C. A. is always represented at the annual conference at Lake Geneva, financing its delegates by operating a candy counter in the Main Building. The delegates for 1931 were Winifred McCue, Elsie Strothmann, Marie Gummersheimer, Ruth Stevenson, and Helen Crisp.

The Y. M. C. A. was organized in the early years of the college. Membership is open to any young man in college. The purpose of the Y. M. C. A. is to promote spiritual life on the campus and to prepare its young men to fulfill the civic and religious duties of good citizenship when they leave college. Regular meetings are held each week, and separate discussion groups also exist. In the general meetings the aim is to develop interest in and knowledge of present-day problems both national and international. The most important topics for discussion this year have been: International and National Race Problems; International Relations; and Is War Ever Justified?

The Dunbar Society was organized in 1925. It is a literary society for negro students and is named in honor of Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the negro poet. Meetings are held every Wednesday at the chapel hour. The programs consist of literary and musical performances.

Assisted by the Roland Hays Club, the Dunbar society presented this year a chapel program in memory of Lincoln. It also furnished the entertainment for the February meeting of the American Association of University Women. The Dunbar basketball team competed in the intramural tournament.

The Pep club, as it now exists, was organized in 1931, although other similar organizations have existed in the past. The membership is open to any one in college. The purpose of the club is to create school spirit and enthusiasm for athletic meets. The club reserves a special section of the grandstand at football and basketball games and is thus able to direct the cheering. This year the club members purchased special sweaters so that they might be easily identified at games.

Features

Benjamin Franklin gave his ideas and energy to all the intellectual movements of his time, but one suspects with reason that he leavened his intellectuality with an essence of quite original humor. Surely no urbane reader of the Autobiography would charge the philosophical Benjamin with unawareness of the more savory aspects of life. For Franklin did not permit himself to wither in cloistered halls. Far from it! Before Franklin compiled the moral precepts contained in Poor Richard's Almanac he traveled around the country getting first-hand reasons for his "don'ts."

We know those things about the sly sage—from his own life record, in fact—so we think it not at all impudent to take a few glimpses at our campus life in that same attitude of well fed complacency with which Franklin regarded all things not of a scientific nature.

One need waste no superlatives on the unquestioned successfulness of Benjamin Franklin, for in his Autobiography he has presented his "life and works" far more subtly and ably than could any mere hero-worshipper. Suffice it to say that Mr. Franklin was born into a world that had need of him, and that he recognized that need and convinced the world of it to his (and the world's) continued glory.

Poor Willy's Almanac

Preface

Since my wife insists upon devoting her fickle existence to the cause of millinery and the teacup, and since she seems intent upon furthering ignorance in herself and my children, to say nothing of the world in general, I have felt it my duty to take upon myself some such bits of knowledge as may serve as an antidote. For want of a better means to that end, I entered college.

And now, my dear illiterate reader, remember that the following harangue is for your betterment and has caused me more pain than will ever be yours as a consequence of the perusal of my volume.

WILLY NILLY.

Chapter I Athletics

Now in any college, athletics is the prime essential to mental development, for it is not only the thing by which the institution is known, but it also occupies the majority of space in college newspapers and payrolls. Willy Nilly has observed that when two or more people are gathered together in the name of athletics, first off comes a sound thrashing one of the other, accompanied by rules, referees, and the like impedimenta, all of which must be disregarded if

Essential to mental development

the contest is to be a success. These games are played for various reasons; and the greatest of these is Charity. But play your game well, for as Willy Nilly has observed, "The bird in the hand is worth two from the stand." And again, "Diligence is the mother of Victory, but the father is still at large."

The ultimate aim of an athletic season is a banquet, for, says Willy Nilly, "Grub for the scrub is avoirdupois for the little boys", and "A pound in the stomach is worth two in the head." Also, "The Lord helps him who helps himself", and the doctor cares for those whom the Lord overlooks. On such occasions wit and humour flow free—a fair price for the product of Wobby Wobertson and Beer Brown.

Wit and humor flow free

Chapter II

Chapel Speeches

It would be considered a hard and cruel president who should deny students hearing the oratorical spasms of the college athletes. Before games there are gathered together on the stage a coagulate of men who have frequented the dressing room to the extent of having athlete's foot. These of the mohair bosoms are introduced by Chuck Harris and, having been coaxed to their feet, are lauded into actual speech. This is an aged and respected custom, having been practiced for many years, but as yet (with the possible exception of Two-Ton Willis) not one of these eloquent giants has failed to state that he had nothing to say and then proved it by talking.

If forensic athletics is to continue its popularity, it might be well to set down a speech to be learned by all good athletes, that it may save them from wagging their tongues uselessly and deliver our fatigued tongues from having to stay too long in the cheek as we cheer.

"I haven't much to say, but I would like to say that if you will come out and root on one side of the fence, we'll root on the other."

Chapter III

Homecoming

"It is foolish to lay out money in a purchase of repentance," says Poor Willy, but it be characteristic of the human to do what is foolish; Homecoming

"I haven't much to say, but . . ."

There is a goodly throng continues to occur yearly. This event is as unfailing in its happening as is the appearance of the ground-hog each spring and the celebration of Christmas. The paper tells the public that the night entertainment will be clever and that the game will be won by the "home boys"; therefore, no one but the skeptics attend, and there is a goodly throng. At the game, Jane Rose Whitley and Dorothy Whitman loudly proclaim fickle admiration, and, as their hearts are always in their mouths, often lose them completely.

Chapter IV Civic Enterprise

The greatest civic enterprise in the city of Carbondale is the business of feeding the loaves and the fishes to the loafers and the jelly fishes. And between Coca Colas there is much fox trotting, for as Poor Willy has observed, "The sleeping fox catches no chicken", and "He who has a date must trot all night." Wherefore, many are the haggard and dissipated looks, for as our friend Willy Nilly has also said, "Late to bed and early to rise leaves little bags under the eyes."

"A watt to the wise is sufficient", says Poor Willy, and so all wise coke-dispensers plunge their places of business into twilight, and those who thirst in one manner or another straightway mill therein. He who thus does his business in the dark is successful, for "God and the government give all things to Industry." And it is nothing out of the ordinary to find a proprietor who can no more than speak in a whisper, so long has he been speaking easy. But to pass is to hear the soft-drink bilbers crooning:

"Oh dime in change, with so much gone of dollar bill, we still drink on", for they are utterly heedless of Willy Nilly's warning that "Lost time and lost dime are seldom found again."

The loafers and the jelly-fishes

Chapter V

Women

According to Willy Nilly the best place to observe women is not across the cream puffs and coffee, but in sorority houses and dormitories, if we may be so bold. It is there you find them in a concentrated solution.

This same Mr. Nilly, having observed that these sororities and dormitories contain too much of the male element, was heard to sing:

In concentrated solution

"Now if I were a Mickey Mouse
In the Tri Sig House I'd tarry,
And singing 'merry, merry'
I'd shinny up the mohair shin
Of Thomas, Dick, and Harry."

As Poor Willy has rightly opined, the eternal female wants to live in a sorority house by the side of the road and be a friend to man. And then, as Juanita Richardson would have it, there are those who are only Nebers.

"A thing of duty is a bore forever", added Willy Nilly after he had seen the Delta Sig pledges rigorously washing windows and door knobs. He repeated the same sentence when he saw the Mu Tau Pi neophytes unflinchingly wearing their orchid and red.

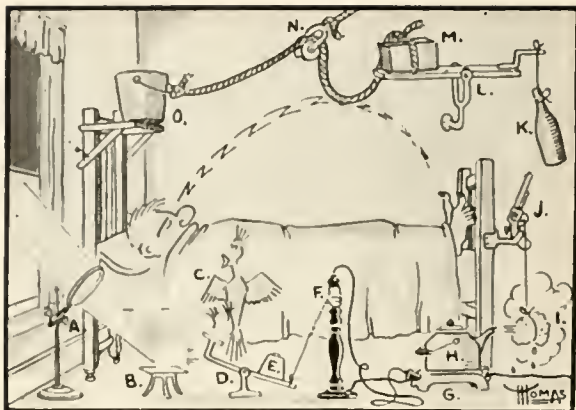

Chapter VI

First-Hour Classes

The alarm clock has brought about an uprising of the student body which in turn has brought about an uprising both for and against first-hour classes. Those who are rising up against first-hour classes are those who have risen up for them. The following is Poor Willy's interpretation of the fiendish song of the alarm:

And be a friend to man

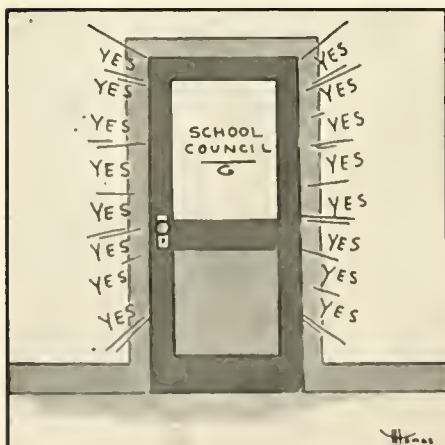

Washing and awakening him in one operation

Directions for Invention

Adjust magnifying glass on standard (A) so that rays of rising sun will focus on tripod (B) and ignite small pile of gunpowder. Explosion frightens Australian Whifflesquib (C), causing bird to fly off perch (D); consequently weight (E) complies with the law of gravity and falls, pulling chain on lamp (F). In this manner the electric stove (G) becomes heated and brings water in kettle (H) to boiling point. The steam from kettle spout strikes sponge (I) and condenses. Increased weight of sponge pulls trigger of revolver (J), bullet from gun strikes bottle (K), breaking it and allowing shot to fall out; thus teeter-totter (L) becomes unbalanced and brick (M) falls, jerking rope through pulley (N) and bucket of water from platform (O). Water falls from bucket on to sleeping student, washing and awakening him in one operation.

Chapter VII School Council

A unanimous consent

"Imbecile, Imbecile, have you heard the news?

All the world is sound asleep, continuing to snooze!

But cold gray dawn relentlessly is making its debut;

So roust about, Unfortunate, and jump into your shoes."

And if you can't endure the clock, try the invention recommended by Poor Willy.

The School Council is a legislative body which consists of eight faculty members and an equal number of men and women elected from the student body. The order of procedure embodies a suggestion, a semi-vote, an implied threat, and then a unanimous consent. This is a very admirable system, for as the all-knowing Mr. Nilly has said, "For children the learning to walk is no bother

If done on a line betwixt mother and father."

After months of forensic quibbling this body adopted a cut system with a double edge: First the student cuts; then it is decided that he is no student, and the teacher cuts the student.

Chapter VIII The Washington Bicentennial

It is indeed fortunate that a bi-centennial celebration comes but once every two hundred years, for there are those who feel that, having died, a man should cease to have birthdays.

Patriotism was abundant, for there were speeches, orations, and much music in which Leo Brown was infected with the Spirit of '76, and Director McIntosh with a great deal of waving of the arms, pantomimed the horseback scene in Paul Revere, thus giving us a life-size picture of our fore-fathers' "ups and downs." The celebration culminated in a representation of Washington in the midst of Brandywine. Wisely enough, the reverse went unattempted.

Patriotism was abundant

Chapter IX Disciplinary Measures

"Disciplinary measures" is a name applied to the walking of the chalk that the prize disciplinarian has a habit of strewing all over the floor. And so Poor Willy warns us thus:

"He who loiters in the hall
With his gal and with his gall,
Ere he has a chance to run,
Beckons downfall on us one
And all."

It has been found that the only way to descend from upper floors during class hours is by way of the fire escapes. Otherwise you will be met mid-way by an extensive and fluent vocabulary. This rigorous state of law and order also extends to stray dogs and ladies' bonnets.

"He who loiters in the hall
With his gal and with his gall,"

Chapter X The May Fete

The original May Day celebration was somewhat of a drunken brawl, and the present-day May Fete comes as a hang-over with the circling of the May Pole taking the place of the alcoholics. Frisky ladies who eat little or nothing in order that they may maintain a slender figure do frolic quite nymph-like, hopping and bending this way and that, for, as Willy Nilly has observed, "It is hard for an empty hag to stand upright."

It is truly a sorry sight to see these nimble women as they dash helter-skelter in their incredible costumes and on their aboriginal limbs. And the appearance of these improvised Dianas, these Goddesses of the Mooney Looks, is just a trifle disappointing. But let them indulge in their quips and quirks, for, says Poor Willy:

Quite nymph-like

"The lassie who dances in Nature's green gym
Shall surely have corns both to peel and to trim."

Chapter XI Spring Plays

When choosing the plays for the spring, coaches reject and choose according to how well those dramatic productions fit the pre-determined casts, thus making the final choice a survival of the fittest. Squabbles are frequent, dissension prevalent, and ere the play is finally chosen, the societies are on the very brink of self-destruction. Lest some of my dear readers fall into a common and despicable fault, let them heed Willy Nilly's observation: "The wight who carries his play book in sight Has an acting career rather anthracite. And you may be sure he's in the ballet Or else full bombastic'ly he will portray A valet."

his play book in sight

Chapter XII

Commencement

Commencement is the culmination of a process of elimination, for, says Willy Nilly, "Constant dropping wears away classes." But this business of elimination is indeed a dangerous one for instructors, if we are to heed Poor Willy, who says, "For want of a grade the credit was lost, and for want of a credit the student was lost, and for want of students a job was lost, all for the want of a flexible alphabet." It has been found that "many an E warrants not an A.B."

But there are tricks in all trades, even graduation. So bear in mind that there are three means to the desired end, as Willy Nilly points out: (1) Grades may depend upon choosing teachers or (2) upon the teachers' choosing. And then, (3) "He who doth hanker to flourish a tassel
May do it through boxing or talent to wrassel."

He who doth hanker to flourish a tassel

Chapter XIII

Summer School

"Summer keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in none other", says Poor Willy, and again, "Perseverance is the Mother of Perspiration." School continues throughout the summer, and there are those who attend. They are a sorry and sultry sight. It is common to see Irish linen that smacks of a cross between a Dutch athlete and the leeward side of a skunk. Freshman girls wax molten and hand in colorful themes. Both the fine and the superfine abandon Tenney's course for the tennis courts, and, as Poor Willy says:

"When classrooms are warm and the swimming pool cool,

It's the school for the pool and the fool for the school."

"There is no fool like an old fool", for it is these fossilized pedagogues who are so seasoned as to disregard the season and go unwhimpering about their labors in the "summer sessions of sweaty, silent thought."

Perseverance is the mother of perspiration
